NATIONAL COURAGE

"I've just had a rush message from Blank, up in the mountains, asking me to get him some fishing tackle and express it," said a broker to a friend. "That's a darned nuisance," the other commented. "What the deekens is the matter with Blank? Can't he send to the house direct and get his tackle?" "Oh, it isn't that, it's his wife," was the explanation. "But the deekens of it is I have forgotten whether Blank takes Scotch or Irish."

"MANSLAUGHTER, NOT MURDER"

That Sergeant John A. McMahon now being tried before the Federal court on a charge of murdering A. N. Cederlof the civilian clerk at Lelehu in September last and who is at present on trial will not be held for murder in the first degree but for manslaughter in the statement made yesterday afternoon following a consultation between the prosecution and defense. United States District Attorney Robert W. Breckons stated that he was willing that the jury should be instructed as to manslaughter and the court will accordingly do this when instructing the jury Monday next after the case has been summed up by both sides.

Captain Sturgess was called by the prosecution when the court opened its session yesterday afternoon and gave the same story as had been given by the other witnesses. From what he had gathered it was McMahon who had been the aggressor and who had struggled with Mrs. McMahon at the back of the house. He said that the conversation had been held about nine o'clock and that although she was a little nervous Mrs. McMahon was very composed seeing what she had been through.

Other witnesses put on the stand by the prosecution were United States Commissioner Charles S. Davies to try and break down the evidence as given by Mrs. Murphy, the stenographer who took notes at the first examination. He could not swear that her notes were wrong, however. Harry Holt, deputy United States marshal, was also put on tell of a conversation he had with McMahon to the effect that McMahon was drunk when the shooting happened. The witness could not testify that McMahon said this, however.

The prosecution then announced that it rested its case and the defense followed with a similar statement. Judge Clemens stated that he would like the case to go to the jury straightway but he did not see how it could be done and he excused the jury until nine o'clock Monday morning.

NEWS AND NOTES FROM MAUI— MUCH ACTIVITY ON VALLEY ISLE

(Special Bulletin Correspondence.)
WAILUKU, Dec. 8.—Wailuku Fire Company No. 1, in command of Chief Engineer Joe F. Welch, had a moonlight drill with the steam fire engine last Tuesday night. The fire badding, about twenty in number, besides the assistant engineers, Charles Wilcox and D. Kalakaua, and Foreman L. H. Silva, marched down to Market street, and after hose drill there the boys returned to headquarters and put up the engine, then going into executive session over sandwiches, soda water and other beverages. The new red shirts and belts were worn off the first time that night.

The Wailuku sugar mill is in full operation now, and in the vicinity of the mill premises long trains of carloads of cane may be seen at all hours of the day, waiting for their turn to unload and get off again for more loads. Big signs are put up at railroad crossings near the mill warning pedestrians and others to keep off or be liable to the fine according to Act 111 of the 1911 laws, which is $10 for each offense. One way in reading over the law has declared that those entering the Claudine landing at Kahului and all railroad depots, excepting employees, being private crossings, are liable under the law.

The Maui County Board of Supervisors is meeting at headquarters this week. Supervisor Wm. Henning of Kahului is the only absentee. Approving bills and other routine work occupied the major part of the session. The supervisors are, however, at work over the budget for the coming six months. The residents of Kahului, Wailuku, have petitioned the board to open-up lanes in that vicinity.

Last Sunday was an ideal, beautiful day, and many of the young people took advantage of it and spent the entire time among the kukui groves of law in picnicking and other health-giving exercises. Automobiles and bicycled on horseback passed up and down the avenue, bringing and returning the picnickers. Attendance at some of the churches in the morning was, of course, slim, but was made up in the evening services, more vim being added to the music in consequence.

Library Activity.

The movement to interest the Honolulu committee in charge of the Library of Hawaii for the extension of the Carnegie Library to Maui has been revived by Rev. R. B. Dodge of the Wailuku Union church. There was considerable correspondence on this subject some three or more years ago by a committee of the Wailuku Improvement Association, but after the receipt of a letter by the secretary of the Carnegie Library Fund, the matter lay dormant, pending the completion of the library. A public meeting of all interested is called for next Tuesday evening at the kindergarten building in Wailuku, when an open discussion on the project will transpire. The Rev. Mr. Dodge has already received reassuring letters on the subject from both Governor W. F. Frear and Judge William L. Whitney, chairman of the trustees of the library committee. Maui in general, and Wailuku in particular, has always felt the need of a library, and the prospects for the loan of books from Honolulu are brighter than ever before.

Maui Teachers to Meet.

The Maui Teachers' Association will hold its annual meeting at the Wailuku Union school next Friday, the 15th inst. A varied program, consisting of sixteen events, has been prepared, the subjects ranging from mental arithmetic, hygiene, industrial education, piano solo, and odds and ends in which many of the teachers and supervising principals will participate. Rev. Canon Short is scheduled for a
